

REACTION TO THE FRENCH OF

ardour dampened. If under the the of morality was reflected in is BO benevolence to mitigate colonial A power is augmented by a and by the fact that the aristocracy is a minority fastened by a and potentially hostile of The of revolt makes for colonial solidarity. in an un-equitable leniency towards and no to delinquents in their conflicts with la is an admixture of physical repugnance on and the in which it results iBay be further by a of —essentially the instinct of emphasizes those very differences residence in the colony only this If the accept, without visible protest, on arc despised, for the wait are Their the colonial feels, further is teristic of the English colonies, this viewpoint, and were astonished to see by an Annamite officer, and to hear a of In a man is thought to¹ make the The fundamental reproach by the ii simply that the Oriental is not a It is so to be along by the tide of prejudice, the $TC til one way. Feeling superior is very Tfoe of the young colony has been m sad It» 10 tint it is natural that be and fti orientation fluctuating and it in § like lado-Gi&ttX m wb0 oo redress and where is a0 in the Annamites ate the to in of to TOHipafriofo. AM this aft of order. ta the the if they in it * for one's sod ift the 0ae cm to tiba ks* the of ;

the
ttt The is s m t fate eicry «t tie to this of gti to or ai*